It’s not too late to apply for tertiary study

AS Year 12 students near the end of their HSC exams, now’s the time to apply through the Universities Admissions Centre (UAC) if they haven’t already. UAC handles applications for 33 participating institutions, mainly in NSW and the ACT, offering more than 2,000 courses.

UAC encourages all Year 12 students to apply, even if they’ve already applied directly to institutions, are worried their ATAR won’t be high enough, or are planning to take a gap year. Even those students not getting an ATAR can apply for one of the many pathway courses offered by UAC’s participating institutions.

There’s still time to apply – applications for semester 1 2017 through uac.edu.au are open until Friday 10 February 2017. All the information can be found on UAC’s website at uac.edu.au, UAC’s mobile app My UAC or in the UAC Guide 2016–17.
