ADMISSION REQUIREMENTS

The University of Notre Dame Australia's unique admissions process looks beyond a single examination score to consider the whole student.

Notre Dame's admissions process is multifaceted and considers each applicant on an individual basis. While each course has indicative academic prerequisites, in addition to comprehensive academic records the University also considers who students are, what they have done, and what they want to do with their lives through the inclusion of a personal statement and an interview. During the interview, students can have their questions answered about their courses of interest.

The University has set an indicative ATAR of 70.00 for most general courses. Some courses such as double degrees and the Bachelor of Laws require a higher indicative ATAR. We encourage all applicants considering the University to apply, irrespective of their ATAR or Higher School Certificate results, as alternative entry pathways are available for students who have not met the direct minimum entry requirements into Bachelor programs.
